

Session: What Keeps Your Hospitalized Patient Up at Night

Presenters: Rosie Bartel, Daniel Ricci

Organization: Bellin Health

Libby Hoy : Please feel free to enter questions for Rosie and Daniel in the chat box or raise your hand so we can unmute you to ask your question.

Deb Jordan : Thank you Rosie, your a hero. It is your story and many others that are what we need drive the changes that are needed.

Janice Juvrud : Grateful you continue to tell your story and you do so much more. Thinking of you as you learn to live without David.

Jan Lambert : Very brave presentation. Thank you for sharing.

Acacia Moises : Thank you Rosie for advocating for environmental cleaning

Michelle Munden : Thank you Rosie for sharing your journey with us. You are making a difference and are helping bring up difficult conversations for the benefit of the patients.

Janice Juvrud : Thank you Daniel for explaining HAI in such a clear way and for the work you do for patients!

Jan Lambert : Communication so important here! Needs to be first step of partnership.

Windy DPH : Thanks Rosie

Laurie Hensley-Wojcieszyn : My husband gets real nervous when I start talking fecal transplants...

Laurie Hensley-Wojcieszyn : What is one idea or insight you had from participating in this session?

Jan Lambert : Power of one!

Libby Hoy : Involve EVS staff empower them to understand the tremendous impact on patient safety

Janice Juvrud : Power of relationships.

Acacia Moises : the importance of cleaning to prevent infection

Laurie Hensley-Wojcieszyn : The idea that the veteran community is a specific and specialized PFE group.

chrisie jackura : Those people work so hard, and yet are invisible.